

ABSTRACT

Method and apparatus to monitor and detect anomalies of information content flows, the method comprising the steps of capturing information access packets, filtering packets to 5 extract information, decoding packets to determine information content, deriving content signatures, trending prototypical behavior, and detecting anomalies of information access, and said apparatus comprising a computing device comprising a network based device that captures the information and produces anomaly information.